Dr. Brandon Horn, PhD, JD, LAc, FABORM is a lecturer, researcher and clinician. He received his bachelor's and juris doctorate degrees from the Ohio State University, his master's degree in oriental medicine from Samra University and his PhD in classical Chinese medicine from the American University of Complementary Medicine, where he currently serves as the Chief Academic Officer.

Brandon is a recognized authority in the fields of infertility and gynecology. He has publications in journals such as Fertility & Sterility, Alternative Therapies in Women's Health, Evidence Based Complementary and Alternative Medicine, and the Journal of Chinese Medicine. He lectures both in the United States and internationally on topics such as the treatment of women with poor ovarian quality, the use of acupuncture to improve uterine receptivity, the use of acupuncture in support of in-vitro fertilization, and integrative approaches to the treatment and management of autoimmune conditions. Venues have included Columbia University, UCLA, LAC + USC Medical Center (Grand Rounds) and Children's Hospital Los Angeles (Grand Rounds).

In researching how to help couples have healthy babies, Brandon developed an interest in fetal development and pediatrics. He currently serves as Clinical Supervisor and Deputy Director of the acupuncture program at Children's Hospital Los Angeles. Brandon is also on faculty at UCLA Medical School.

Brandon also offers the following online courses through Pro D Seminars

- Acupuncture strategies to dramatically improve IVF success (12 CEU/PDA)
- Optimizing Ovarian Reserve (10 CEU/PDA)

The eight extraordinary channels contain some of the most powerful means to influence our fertility and our overall health. While knowledge of these channels predates the Nei Jing, the perspective on what these channels are and what they do has evolved. While this evolution resulted in the introduction of some useful treatment strategies, it unfortunately did not retain the most important part: a fundamental understanding of these energetics. As a result, we are only tapping into a small portion of these channels' potential.

This seminar introduces an alternative and consistent theory of the eight extra channels and demonstrates how it can be used to achieve extraordinary results in a wide range of fertility issues.

- A. The seminar begins with a discussion of the inconsistencies and limitations of modern eight extra channel theory. It then derives both structure and function in a way that resolves the inconsistencies presented by what we typically learn about these channels. The derivation presented predicts the coupled pairs, but enables one to see the limitations of these combinations, and how different combinations can be much more powerful.
- B. The second part of the seminar discusses diagnostics including pulse diagnosis, abdominal palpation, tongue diagnosis, face reading and examination of the teeth.
- C. The third part of the seminar provides examples of treatment protocols for a variety of stubborn infertility conditions including: conception facilitation, anovulation, amenorrhea, recurrent pregnancy loss, miscarriage prevention, poor ovarian quality, advanced maternal age, aneuploidy (chromosomal abnormalities) and the treatment of accumulations and concentrations (uterine, ovarian and breast masses)

The course presents two longer case studies to demonstrate an in-depth diagnosis, analysis and treatment management, as well as a number of shorter case studies. The cases chosen all had relatively dramatic results and herb formulas and acupuncture point combinations, including stimulation methods, dosages, etc. are included.

Note: This course presents both basic and advanced material. However it does NOT present the common "meridian map". Instead, the course postulates that the meridian map is somewhat like patent medicine. Just as the herbal formula si wu tang gives one strategy to approach tonifying blood, the common meridian map is only one idea of how to approach a particular aspect of the eight extra channels. This course is not about throwing away that map, but rather realizing its limitations as only one strategy, and offers a more effective approach to using the eight extra channels to treat infertility.

Outline:

1. Understanding conception: Discussion of conception in terms of Jing Qi and Shen and applying a protocol for facilitating conception via the entrance and assimilation of the Hun and Po.
2. Exploring the concept of Qi and why the eight extra channels are not meridians.
3. Exploring the genesis of the eight extra channels from both structural and functional perspectives.
4. Case study on recurrent pregnancy loss.
5. Exploring blood physiology and misconceptions regarding Chong mai
6. Exploring the eight extra channels from an energetic perspective and exploring how the theory is applied in multiple situations.
7. Derivation of the eight extra channel coupled points through a 5 element mapping.
8. Exploring diagnostic evaluation by looking, including bone structure, teeth and tongue diagnosis.
9. Exploring diagnostic evaluation by listening and examining how personality traits can be diagnostic of eight extra channel pathology.
10. Exploring diagnostic evaluation of the pulses with a discussion of both the standard Wang Shu He and Li Shi Zhen pulse configurations, as well as several alternate pulse configurations.
11. Case study: Infertility in a patient with Hashimoto's thyroiditis and MTHFR polymorphism.
12. Exploring palpation including a discussion of the triple heater, back shu points, source points, mu points, etc. and how to evaluate the dynamics of jing through palpation.
13. Exploring needle techniques used in the treatment of the eight extraordinary channels and how different techniques can activate different aspects of the channels.
14. Case study of patient with amenorrhea and PCOS that conceived after not having had a menses in over 9 months.
15. Discussion of aging and protocol for reversing damage caused by aging.
16. Discussion and protocol for improving oocyte integrity.
17. Discussion and protocol for prevention of aneuploidy.
18. Discussion and protocol for the treatment of uterine polyps (includes case study).
19. Discussion and protocol for the treatment of ovarian cysts (includes case study).
20. Discussion and protocol for the treatment of early stage endometrial cancer (case study).
21. Discussion and protocol for the treatment of breast cysts (includes case study).
22. Discussion and protocols for the prevention of common causes of miscarriages.
23. Live demonstration of intake, treatment and needle techniques.
24. Summary of lecture.

Members of the Board of Oriental Medicine:

I am requesting approval for either 8 or 10 continuing education credits for coursework in Traditional Chinese Feng Shui. The course was 150 hours of class time and at least another 150 hours of homework.

As you are aware, Feng Shui is one of the eight branches of Chinese Medicine. I took this Feng Shui class to improve my understanding of the environmental aspects of Chinese Medicine and because it was a branch I did not know much about. As the course continued, I found that not only was it increasing my understanding of the environmental aspects, it renewed my enthusiasm and love of Chinese Medicine.

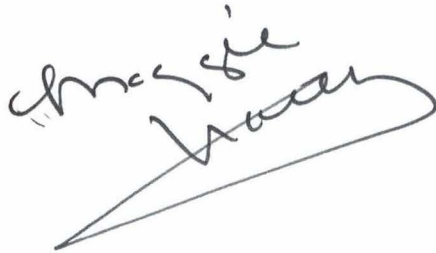

As you can see by the attached curriculum and course descriptions, it was very involved and very intense. The classes often went over time with instructors and students staying late. The field trips were varied with some full days at "feng shui" gardens.

I am now enrolled in the advanced certification course, which is one wkend every six weeks.

Thank you for your consideration of this request.

Sincerely,

Maggie Tracey, O.M.D.

GOLDEN GATE FENG SHUI SCHOOL

A Complete Curriculum in the Foundations of Traditional Chinese Feng Shui

Since 2002, Golden Gate Feng Shui School (GGFSS) has offered a comprehensive curriculum in Traditional Chinese Feng Shui (TCFS).

This foundational program is designed to educate students in the history, view, and application of Traditional Chinese Feng Shui as preparation for practice in the modern world. Students who choose to specialize in feng shui are able to begin work as practitioners upon graduation. Alternately, professional architects, interior designers, and practitioners of Chinese Medicine find that feng shui deepens their existing practice and enhances their professional appeal.

To this end, Golden Gate Feng Shui School has developed a refined educational model with courses on the classical feng shui principles of form, compass school, astrology and self-cultivation. This curriculum encourages both practical and esoteric thinking, which builds in depth and breadth with each weekend.

“Feng Shui is the Chinese science of divining human fate from the lay of the land. Like astrology, its celestial partner, feng shui supposes that Nature (Dao) may be read as a complex of influences on the conduct and relationships of sentient beings. It may be called a terrestrial astrology. In fact, in China feng shui might be more appropriately called astrogeomancy.”

- Liu Ming

CURRICULUM

At GGFSS, we feel it is important that students be steeped in the tradition and cosmological world view that is feng shui's origin. The immersion in the study and practice of classical feng shui engages students in profound personal and professional growth.

We offer, without question the finest course of study available in the world today. We are the only school to supplement in-depth training in TCFS, with facilitated site visits, study groups, and an online community to stay in touch between classes.

Classes meet over a three day weekend approximately once a month, at our classrooms in Uptown Oakland, CA.

COURSE DESCRIPTIONS (ABRIDGED)

History of Feng Shui

Focusing on the human relationship to nature, we follow the transition of nomadic life to sedentary agricultural life at the foundation of Chinese civilization.

Principle Application

Complex feng shui principles including the five elemental phases, yin-yang, sheng and sha qi, and san cai. The introduction of colors and shapes are studied as feng shui solutions and we take a journey through a room by room analysis.

Eastern Cosmology

Students learn the fundamental cosmology of Chinese Science. A journey through Confucian, Daoist, and Animist world-views uncovers the universal principles of feng shui.

Western Geomancy

Introduction to dowsing for detection of harmful/beneficial energies, earth acupuncture techniques, and protocols for building labyrinths and creating ley lines.

Environmental Assessment

We will examine patterns in nature that create longevity; evaluate the qi of landscapes; and explore the influence of local landforms on architectural design.

Walking the Dragon

Learn to sense the invisible essence within a physical environment. Train to read qi to see how landscapes impact our prosperity, power, and health. Locate dragon veins, energy vortexes, and power spots in a landscape.

Loupan Compass

Read the vibrational energies that are affecting a site as well as how the orientation of a building is related to its fate.

Ming Gua and Bazhai (Directional Analysis)

Students learn the ming gua and bazhai compass methods for determining auspicious directions and locations for inhabitants and structures that support optimum potential for health, relationships, sleep, and business.

Nine Star Ki

Personal directionology used for travel, relocation, and revealing personality traits. Refines client recommendations based on their inner nature.

Consultation Practical: Theater

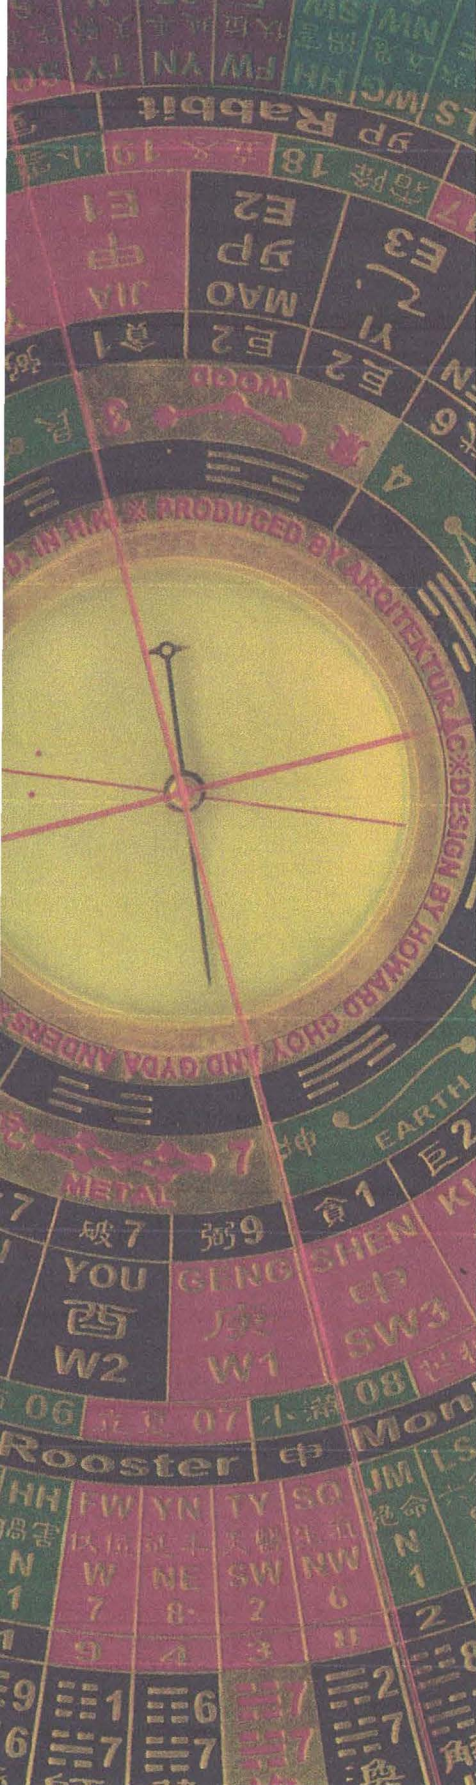

Learn about the process of client consultations from start to finish, through in depth case studies illustrated with photos, floor-plans, and video.

Qigong

Slow, stylized repetition of fluid movement forms involving rhythmic breathing. Daily qi exercises enhances one's ability to diagnose buildings and environments.

Food and Health

The theory and practice of Chinese Daoist Physiology focuses on the spiritual and cosmic nature of the body and its patterns. We look at the respiratory, digestive, and central nervous systems as well as eating, resting, and breathing.

WORLD-RENOWNED FACULTY

GGFSS has a long-standing reputation for innovative coursework, non-dogmatic teaching, and a faculty of world-renowned experts. The continuing inspiration for disseminating this knowledge is due in notable part to the comprehensive and far-reaching discourses of the late Liu Ming. Ming taught Chinese medicine and astrogeomancy for the greater part of his remarkable life.

Manu Butterworth is the founding director of Golden Gate Feng Shui School. He's been involved in the study, practice, and education of feng shui for the past 20 years. Manu works privately with clients and collaborates with architects, builders, realtors, designers, and other professionals.

Howard Choy is an Australian architect and international feng shui practitioner/lecturer. Following a BA in Architecture in 1978, he began to study feng shui in Hong Kong and China under personal direction of Master Ren Zhilin and other feng shui experts. He currently teaches and practices across three continents.

Robert Sachs has studied with Tibetan Buddhist masters for decades and is deeply involved in the study, practice, and teaching of Asian healing systems. He holds a BA in comparative religion and sociology.

Richard Feather Anderson is an internationally recognized pioneer in geomancy. He synthesizes feng shui, Western Geomancy, environmental psychology and architecture.

David Wei is a 16th Generation Disciple of Wudang Zhang San Feng Pai, and a teacher of internal martial arts and traditional Chinese acupuncture massage. He trained in traditional Shaolin kung fu with Master Y.C. Chiang and was accepted as a disciple of Master Yuan in 2007.

Joseph Davis is a CA State Licensed Acupuncturist (LAc), herbalist, and Professor at ACCHS. He brings his knowledge of the context, breadth, and philosophy of Eastern cultures to his practice of medicine. Health cultivation is not a "fix" that a doctor or acupuncturist gives you, but is a process that the practitioner and patient engage in together.

Erene Lejeune has studied traditional medicines since 1998. She has apprenticed in the fields of Mayan shamanism, Chi Nei Tsang, herbalism, cultural anthropology, Traditional Tibetan Medicine, Chinese Polestar Natal Astrology, and other TCM fields such as meditation, nutrition, nei kung, and of course, feng shui. Erène currently lives and works in San Francisco, traveling often to teach.

Daniel Hudson, LAc, began his study of Chinese Medicine in 1994 and has a thriving clinical practice in Colorado where he also uses feng shui to better support his patients. He lectures throughout the U.S. and Canada on Chinese medicine and its application in the modern world.

Alex Stark is an internationally recognized consultant, advisor, and teacher on issues of creativity, efficiency, and design. A graduate of the Yale University School of Architecture, he is a practitioner of feng shui and European Geomancy.
